

ABSTRACT

A method to additionally test a patient's specimen using an analyzer some period of time after initial tests on an aliquot of the patient's specimen are completed by retaining an aliquot of the patient's specimen within the analyzer for a period of time.